

A New Zealand where children can flourish:
Family income support priorities

CPAG spokespeople

Associate Professor Susan St John

CPAG Economics and Fix Working for Families Spokesperson

Susan is a founding member of CPAG and CPAG spokesperson on economics. She is an Honorary Associate Professor in the Economics Department, University of Auckland and the director of the Retirement Policy and Research Centre.

Susan has researched the Government's Working for Families tax credit scheme extensively and leads CPAG's Fix Working for Families campaign.

Susan is co-editor of CPAG's flagship publication Our children, our choice: priorities for policy (2014) as well as co-author of Children and the Living Wage (2017), co-editor of earlier reports' Left Further Behind: How policies fail the poorest children in New Zealand (2011) and Left Behind: How social and income inequalities damage New Zealand children (2008). Susan is co-author of other CPAG material including Cut Price Kids: Does the 2004 Working for Families' Budget work for children? (2004) and Our Children: The Priority for Policy (2001, 2003). She was co-editor of Redesigning the Welfare State in New Zealand: Problems, Policies Prospects, Oxford University Press (1999), Dalziel P, Boston, J. and St John, S (eds). Recent articles include: Reflections on the Child Hardship Bill , Policy Quarterly (August 2015), Institute for Governance and Policy Studies, University of Victoria and Putting Children at the Centre: Making policy as if children mattered, Educational Philosophy and Theory, 2014.