Chorus Cabinet art

With over 11,000 telecommunications cabinets across New Zealand we're looking for budding artists to show us their skills and bring some colour to our neighbourhoods.

Art4Me has applied to Chorus to design and paint a cabinet at 32 High Street, not far from the Baptist church in Greymouth.

We were having some fun on zoom thinking about themes and designs... these include beach, whitebait, sunsets, penguins and wetas and plants.

During lockdown paint or draw your ideas or design and we can bring them together to make a really cool cabinet.

EXHIBITION GOES VIRTUAL?

Our exhibition continues to be on hold.... In the meantime we're working with the Left bank gallery to explore some Virtual Exhibition options. More soon....

This is a cool opportunity to design for fabric- and to receive your printed- check out <https://www.thegreencollective.co.nz/blogs/news/spruce-design-competition-2021>

Check out Creative Click if you're looking for a photo focus for your creativity during lockdown

Maggie Cowan continues her work with on blues and greens the background of her Karearea

There was a morning where everyone had an opinion about what Richard should do next...

Paula Lister has been thinking about good designs for our Chorus cabinet...
Lorraine Keeley has finished her picture of The Venetian Merchant

Dr Blossompatch aka Susi Luecht- would like to draw the public's attention to another bothersome and at times dangerous virus, the common influenza virus (Influenza rhino rubra). She urges everyone to get vaccinated. However, certain predatory animals also help to keep this nasty virus under control

Jay Turner
The top being blown off of San Francisco city hall was in two shows: San Francisco and San Jose.

Nikki Davies- and some of her Stonehenge prints- watch for the subtle changes Nikki makes as she works on different versions of the same print.

Laura and family continue to make an image for every day during lockdown!

Day 16: sunshine! Getting those rugs and throws out for an airing.
