TAKING LEARNING TO NEW LEVELS

Do you publish educational material for students, adult learners, or the general public? Are you looking for end-to-end support that may include text development, editing, illustration and design, print management, and the logistics of storage, shipping and distribution?

Lift Education (educational publishing) and Blue Star (print and logistics) partner with government ministries, development partners, and other organisations to produce print and online educational resources.

We participate in the tendering process and then work with local partners in the Pacific to transform teaching and learning resources. Our work can also include mentoring and training for writers, illustrators, editors, and others involved in the production process.

Print and e-media services we offer include:

- project design
- cost estimates and tendering
- project management
- intellectual property management (rights and permissions)
- workshops to develop local skills
- text development and curriculum alignment
- writing, editing, design, and illustration
- audio, video, and digital media production
- printing
- storage, shipping, and distribution
- secure storage of print-ready files ready for reprint.

By partnering with Lift Education and Blue Star, you free up your staff to oversee resource production. We have an award-winning ability to work with Pacific partners and in Pacific languages. With the Department of Education in Tokelau
We are in a long-term partnership with the Tokelau Department of Education as it transforms its teaching and learning resources in gagana Tokelau and English. This print and e-media publishing programme is funded by the Australian Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade.

With the Ministries of Education in the Cook Islands, the Solomon Islands, and Tonga

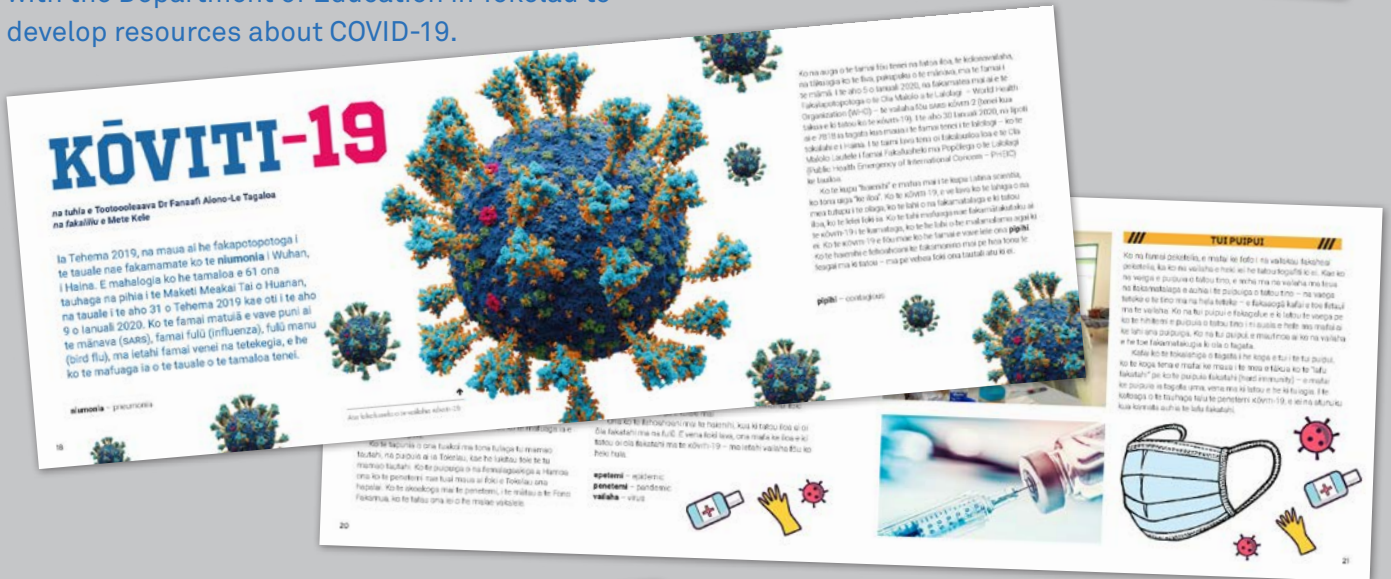

Working with the University of Auckland and the University of the South Pacific, we supported the three ministries of education to publish Pacific Literacy and School Leadership Programme resources in local languages and dialects, including English, as well as teacher-support material purpose-built for local teaching realities. Innovations included the use of kastom stories to introduce science topics and student material developed in local dialects. This publishing programme was supported by the New Zealand Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Trade.

With the New Zealand Ministry of Education
We develop and print the School Journal in English, and print and e-media resources in five Pacific languages (gagana Sāmoa, gagana Tokelau, lea Faka-Tonga, reo Māori Kūki 'Āirani, and vagahau Niue), including a hundred-book early childhood Pacific picture book project, and partner with the Ministry of Education to publish resources for Samoan and Tongan bilingual classes. Our areas of expertise include early reading, literacy, science, and technology.

Health resources

We have developed print and e-media material for a vaccination campaign in fourteen languages for the New Zealand Ministry of Health. We have partnered with the Department of Education in Tokelau to develop resources about COVID-19.

With Fire and Emergency New Zealand For volunteer firefighters, we develop training manuals for adult learners (including the use of augmented reality) and fire safety print and e-media resources in English and te reo Māori for use in early childhood centres and schools.
