

MONUMENTAL INSCRIPTIONS AT THE PAUATAHANUI BURIAL GROUND
PAUATAHANUI, PORIRUA CITY

Prepared by Sharon Evans, a member of the Burial Ground Management Committee
March 2011

The Pauatahanui Burial Ground occupies .34 of a hectare on the southern edge of Pauatahanui village in Porirua City. It is reached by using the driveway leading from Paekakariki Hill Road to St. Alban's Church, the driveway entrance being immediately to the left of the war memorial. The Burial Ground is behind a tall hedge on the right side of the driveway, while the church and its cemetery are on the left side.

The Burial Ground was established on land donated by the STACE family in 1856. A Trust was set up to own and administer the burial ground. In 2004, a process was started which was designed to allow the Porirua City Council to become the owner, and for the Council and local residents to share responsibility for maintenance. This process culminated in the passage of the Porirua City Council (Pauatahanui Burial Ground) Act 2007. The Council's archives became the repository for records associated with the Burial Ground.

The legal processes necessary to close the Burial Ground to further burials were completed in December 2004, although there will be a small number of burials in the future, in plots already purchased, and interment of ashes in existing plots where feasible.

The first burial with a surviving headstone, that of 26-year old Maria BRADEY, took place in 1860, and the most recent was the interment of the ashes of John Barrie GLASSON in 2009.

Below is a transcription of the information on the headstones and plaques on the graves in the burial ground. A transcription in 2004 updated that carried out by the New Zealand Society of Genealogists in 1979. Burial records for this burial ground are incomplete, and are not presented here. The 2004 transcription was carried out by the following members of the Porirua Branch of the New Zealand Society of Genealogists: Ross Bonnell, Pam Edmonds, Sharon Evans, Cliff Matthews, Lorraine Matthews and Heather Mountjoy.

The transcription was updated in November 2008 to include 28 probable graves which were identified by a ground-penetrating radar survey in June 2008. They are shown in this transcription as [Probable grave]. The transcription was updated in 2010 to correct some spelling errors, and to include hearsay information about three plots which have no headstones. The descriptions of these plots are in italics. The transcription was further updated in 2011 to include the inscription on the SHARP grave.

The plot numbers in this transcription correspond to those on the plan produced by the Porirua City Council labeled "Pauatahanui Burial Ground/ Pauatahanui, Porirua/March 2010.

PRESENTATION OF INFORMATION

Surnames are shown in upper case letters.

Square brackets [ ] are used to denote information which is not on any headstone but which is relevant to the nature or situation of the grave. Curly brackets { } are used to denote information on headstones which is likely to be the name of the firm of stonemasons which made the headstone.

Plots which have been paid for, but not yet used, are described as 'Pre-purchased plot'.

There are 126 plots in 16 rows. There are several types of plot. The most common is a built grave with one or more headstones. Other types are: a built grave with no headstone; a headstone with no built structure; an area with a wooden or ironwork fence and no headstone; a probable grave with nothing visible above ground; and a bare plot that has been purchased for future use. Each type of plot may cover more than one burial.

- 124. ILMO Eliza BOON, d. 12 August 1903, a. 31 years. Had we but seen her still in life Watched by her dying bed Caught the last flickering of her breath Pillowed her dying head: Our hearts, we think, would not have felt The bitterness of grief God willed it otherwise And now she rests in peace. Also Annie, dearly loved wife of Arthur HARRIS, d. 11 January 1904, a. 27. Gone from our side, how sadly we miss her Our dear sister Annie her memory we'll keep Ne'er to life's end will we ever forget her Dear to our hearts is the place where she sleeps.
