INTRODUCTION

Little over a month ago, 22 young people from all over New Zealand were chosen to represent their schools, communities and country on the trip of a life time - UN Youth New Zealand's Global Development Tour. This tour will take the delegation to the world's leading examples of Sustainable Development, demonstrating how the future's key issues are being solved. Going on to the Youth Assembly at the United Nations Headquarters in New York, the delegates will represent New Zealand as young leaders, sharing their perspectives at a conference full of speakers, changemakers and other young global citizens, and engaging with their potential to make the world a better place.

This trip will equip students with the knowledge, skills and experiences that are vital to New Zealand's continued presence on the world stage. Having worked and volunteered for UN Youth for the last four years, I know the youth of New Zealand are capable of so many amazing things. They are driven, inspired and talented, and as a country we are responsible for helping them realise this and make good of the opportunities that they have available to them. Within our group, we have students who thrive in their own respective arenas. Among the delegation we have local board representatives, liaisons to MPs, school leaders and more. In the trip's application process, there was one common trait that united this diverse bunch - they all wanted to know how they could do more. They were hungry to see the world and learn from it, seeing the Global Development Tour as their means to do exactly that.

This Sponsorship Proposal will take you through what the Global Development Tour is and introduce you to the young people who have done everything they can to be a part of it. It gives me great pride to present this initiative to you and your organisation. I sincerely hope you see the Global Development Tour as I do, an unprecedented opportunity to contribute towards the development and enrichment of New Zealand's future generation of leaders.

Thank you for your consideration.

Yours sincerely,

Brendon Lee
Global Development Tour 2017 Director
UN Youth New Zealand

THE GLOBAL DEVELOPMENT TOUR

The Global Development Tour is an educational tour. This opportunity was created by UN Youth to offer something alternative to school field trips, foreign exchanges and the traditional OE. Instead, the Global Development Tour will teach and contextualise global issues and policy making. It fulfils a growing interest from the next generation about how the world's interconnected, diplomatic community functions, and how this plays a vital role in global development and resolving the world's ongoing issues.

Historically, UN Youth has directed an annual delegation to the The Hague Model United Nations (THIMUN) in The Netherlands. As a leading civics education charity, we have taken time to consider the learning outcomes of past delegations to THIMUN. This year the decision has been made to take the delegation of students to Europe and New York as we have done before, but not attend the THIMUN conference. The structure of the trip instead is being adapted to follow on more accurately from the educational material we offer domestically, and as a replacement the delegation will be attending the Youth Assembly held at the United Nations Headquarters in New York. Each stop on the tour relates to a focus area of the Sustainable Development Goals - basic needs, equity and education, business and innovation, environmental sustainability and global partnership. While in each new city, relevant policy makers, businesses and NGOs will be visited for educational meetings, which will be used to inform the delegates' knowledge to be shared at the Youth Assembly.

For 2017, the Global Development Tour is focusing specifically on the United Nation's 2030 Goals for Sustainable Development. These universally agreed targets represent how we hope to see the world change for the better in the next 15 years. Showcasing the businesses, NGOs and civil servants leading this vision to our young people will set them an example to follow in their time at university and their careers. We will highlight these issues in context and the nuances considered in their resolution. This first hand approach will empower our delegation to take on these problems themselves in their own communities, bringing home all they have gained back to New Zealand.

YOUTH ASSEMBLY AT THE UN

The Tour culminates in the Youth Assembly at the United Nations Headquarters in New York, demonstrating to the delegation how to apply their knowledge to meaningful change in their own communities. Youth Assembly has held 17 sessions since 2004, and is connected to permanent missions as well as organisations such as the International Youth Council and Resolutions Project.

The conference will feature panel discussions and speeches by UN high officials and ambassadors, the private sector and civil society, and youth leaders. In addition, students will have opportunities to engage in roundtable discussions lead by heads of non-governmental organizations, corporations, and government or UN officials about planning for and achieving the Sustainable Development Goals.

UN YOUTH NEW ZEALAND

UN Youth is a charity that provides civics education outside the traditional classroom. Through fun workshops, Model UN, and outreach events, we engage secondary and tertiary students in the most pressing affairs of their country and the international community.

Throughout Aotearoa, our work equips young people to become informed, engaged, and critical New Zealanders who understand their global context and the connections between the local and the global. UN Youth provides young people with the necessary educational and social skills to excel. Annually, over 2000 young New Zealanders from Northland to Invercargill attend UN Youth events.

UN Youth is powered by a body of 150 volunteers across the country who dedicate many hours of their week to engaging young people and growing the organisation.

HOW YOU CAN HELP

The delegate fee for the Global Development Tour 2017 is $7,950. This includes all flights, transfers, accommodation, group activities and meals. Since the Tour is entirely organised and staffed by volunteers, this fee is almost entirely comprised of the actual costs incurred on the trip, and the volunteer staff personally contribute towards their portion of the costs.

For all of our students and their families, this trip is a huge undertaking. Our delegation represents a broad and diverse cross-section of New Zealand society. For some of our delegates, this Tour may only be made possible through the generous support of organisations like your own. The delegation has already begun working and fundraising to make the Tour as affordable as it possibly can be. By providing financial assistance, your organisation will ensure that the Tour remains accessible to promising young New Zealanders. Whether your organisation's support is monetary or through the donation of goods or services, any possible contribution will enrich and improve the Tour.

Being able to send New Zealand representatives to the Youth Assembly is a unique opportunity for all New Zealand communities. Your organisation can help enable our delegation to energise their learning and development; instigate self-motivated and collective discussion; and to translate these accomplishments into a truly meaningful change for all youth. Our students are known to become leaders in their respective communities, and it is critical that society plays its part in supporting these leaders of tomorrow. You can create a positive view of today's youth and help nurture active role models for the wider good of all New Zealand.

Supporting the Global Development Tour 2017 will be a unique opportunity for your organisation to get involved in the community. We ask your organisation to stand alongside UN Youth in providing development opportunities for New Zealand's emerging leaders and encourage them to be passionate, intelligent, well-informed, and confident global citizens. Your support helps us as volunteers provide this once in a life-time experience to our delegates, expanding our capacity to mentor, educate and care for the future leaders of New Zealand.

MEET THE DELEGATION

22 outstanding young leaders were chosen to be a part of the Global Development Tour 2017 delegation. They were selected after a rigorous application and interview process, and the calibre of the delegation truly reflects this. The delegates hail from across the country, and represent the smartest and most brilliant minds of New Zealand's youth.

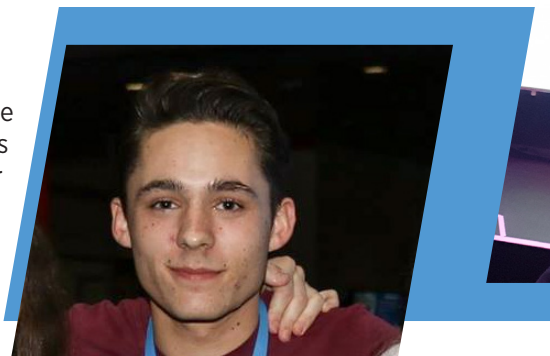

Madeleine Adams - Paraparaumu College

From a very young age, Madeleine has strived towards becoming a Human Rights activist. She is passionate about understanding and advocating for the rights of people in disadvantaged situations, whether it be age, race, gender, sexuality, or anything else. This has motivated her involvement in UN Youth events, such as Model Security Council, where discussion centred around the conflict in South Sudan, and Wellington Model United Nations, on the issue of Climate Change Refugees. These experiences helped channel Madeleine's passion into debates and discussion on what exactly is needed to change the world. The Global Development Tour will continue to do this, but on a worldwide scale.

Madeleine is excited for the delegation to have the opportunity to learn, live, and understand the world, which she believes is the most important thing for young aspiring world changers.

David Alsop - John McGlashan College

David has lived in Dunedin his whole life. Although now focusing on the humanities and academics, he is someone who prides himself on his breadth of fields. David has played representative football for Otago for several years, being named captain for two South Island Tournaments, and also trialled for New Zealand U17 in 2014, but eventually prioritised other activities. He was the lead in his school musical last year, and learnt the piano for 6 years. David takes the International Baccalaureate, with High Level subjects in English, Economics and History. David attributes UN Youth for strengthening his character and resolve, as well as giving him a guide to concentrate his talents and focus in the future. He believes the Global Development Tour will develop his global citizenship, as well as provide him with the skills and wisdom to compete on a global level in fields such as politics and entrepreneurship.

Maisy Bentley - Paraparaumu College

For as long as she can remember, Maisy has been interested in world affairs and particularly with questions of equality and social justice. Her concern with topics of gender equality, representation of minorities, globalisation, the influence of lobby groups and multinational corporations on politics; a passion for active debate; and the exchange of ideas has continued to grow over the years. Maisy's political awareness and social conscience has been galvanised by her personal circumstances over recent years, including health issues which resulted in her being away from mainstream education for nearly two years.

These experiences have fuelled her passion to play a part in changing the world for the better, by taking action as a global citizen. On the Global Development Tour, Maisy hopes to learn more about topics that matter, such as human rights, equity, environmental sustainability, and economic development. Through understanding the operations of NGOs, the United Nations, and international governments, she hopes to create a bigger impact and become a better global citizen.

Casey Brown - St Hilda's Collegiate

Casey cites education as her biggest passion. She thoroughly enjoys school, and is really enthusiastic about learning as much about the world around her as possible. Casey loves to keep busy, and plays a range of sports - from touch rugby, to squash, to the true delight that is curling. She endeavours to immerse herself in cultural activities as well, doing a lot of dance, speech, and debating. In her spare time, Casey loves to chill out with a good book or have a jam to some tunes. Global Development Tour 2017 offers her the opportunity to expand her worldview on prevalent issues in our ever globalised society. She sees the ability to stand at the forefront of societal advancement by gaining an in-depth insight on the Sustainable Development Goals, and attending the United Nations Youth Assembly, as being of immense value and benefit. As such, she cannot wait for January!

Rafael Clarke - Lincoln High School

Rafael is an Academic Prefect at his high school. A community-focused volunteer and active youth advocate, chair of Selwyn district's Youth Council 2015, he considers it a pleasure and a privilege to serve UN Youth, UNICEF and Commonwealth Youth for NZ. Bridging the gap between the generations through both study and service, he seeks to ensure a clearer pathway for our wonderfully multicultural society at a local and global level through teamwork and total respect for our environment. A part-time worker and barista, Rafael understands and relates excellently with his community. Anyone with an eye on current world politics will appreciate that now is the time of greatest need for close cooperation for the general good. Without this, our environment will become imperiled. The Tour embodies his personal ethos and will bring pragmatism to the challenges of 2030 and enable him to truly serve New Zealand.

Romaine Crawford - Karamu High School

“Ko Romaine Crawford toku ingoa,
He Maori au,
Kahuranaki toku maunga,
Ngaruroro toku awa,
Ngati Kahungunu toku iwi.
E patoto ana taku taiaha i te tatou o Te Matau a Maui Tikitiki a Taranga.”

Romaine is 18 years old and currently in Year 13. She is an excellence endorsed student and holds the position of Academic Prefect. Romaine is actively involved in a wide range of cultural and sporting activities in school and in her community. Next year, she intends to start a degree in Law and Education at Victoria University of Wellington.

Romaine believes being a delegate will expose her to situations that will encourage and inspire her to develop new perspectives, to become a more effective leader and global citizen. She hopes to be challenged to seek new ideas to participate in changing global issues, and also to build on her communication skills and look at ways to become a valued member of my community. She looks forward to collaboratively attacking international issues that will help broaden her horizons and aid her understanding of the importance of sustainable and workable solutions.

Michael Daya-Winterbottom - King's College

Michael is a Year 13 student and school prefect at King's College, Auckland, and has been actively involved in UN Youth since 2014. Michael is driven by a firm interest in politics, global issues and international relations. These are all well represented in the range of extracurricular activities he is involved in, such as Debating and the Round Square Democracy Committee. In his spare time, he can be found watching rugby, going to the gym, or hanging out with friends.

Michael seeks to gain three things through the experience of the Global Development Tour: an in-depth understanding of the UN Sustainable Development Goals; a wider appreciation of the views of youth from New Zealand and the rest of the world on contemporary issues; and finally, the forming of lasting friendships and cementing existing ones with likeminded young adults on the Tour. He is especially looking forward to the Youth Assembly, where he hopes to meet other likeminded youth who share the common purpose of understanding and working towards achieving the Sustainable Development Goals.

Tei Driver - Christchurch Girls' High School

Tei is a Year 13 student, and coming from Christchurch Girls' High School, Tei has learnt not only about empowerment, but particularly empowerment for women. She thinks that New Zealanders are very privileged to be a highly educated people as a whole; everyone with an education has a responsibility to use it for the better. Tei credits UN Youth to be as a big part of her education as her schooling has been. School has taught her the facts and figures and helped her pass exams to get to tertiary and such, but UN Youth NZ has taught her how to truly apply herself, communicate, negotiate and stand for causes that may be bigger than her, but will affect herself and future generations in a very real way.

From this trip, Tei believes she will gain the knowledge of how our international political spheres really function on this earth and be able to apply the skills listed above to round herself fully as a global citizen; prepared for being part of the next generation of problem solvers. She will also gain an extremely tight knit group of friends and allies for future political ventures in the delegation, and knows we already stand completely united in how we will challenge the leaders we connect with at Youth Assembly 2017 and what we believe needs to happen.

Antoine Ellis - Westlake Boys' High School

Antoine is the Head Boy at Westlake Boys' High School, and is extremely excited to be part of the delegation! Antoine actively spends his time playing and coaching water polo; promoting language learning through having formed a club that hosts cultural activities at local primary schools; working closely within the UNICEF NZ network where he focuses on the empowerment of young people; and talking about deep philosophical concepts with others – just not all at once!!

The Global Development Tour is an amazing opportunity for which Antoine believes he can truly launch himself into the world of global affairs. From contextually exploring international industries, to meeting influential change makers, to learning more about how to ignite passion into reality, there is a plethora of new skills to learn. Doing so alongside a group of passionate and proactive friends, though, is what Antoine thinks will elevate this trip into being truly unforgettable!

Disha Gomathinayagam - Mt Roskill Grammar School

Disha is a Year 13 student studying at Mt Roskill Grammar School. Disha believes that everyone on Earth has a purpose, and wants to leave this world having made a positive change to those around her. She is passionate about issues such as climate change, the refugee crisis and racial equality. Disha aspires to work for the United Nations in the future, and dedicate her life to becoming a true global citizen. She believes this tour will be an amazing opportunity to gain a global perspective on issues that affect us on a day to day basis. Being able to interact with our generation's change-makers, leaders and other like-minded students will help her get a better cultural understanding while making worldwide connections. She believes it will also give her the chance to step out of her comfort zone in order to start asking the important questions. Disha is proud to be a part of the delegation of the Global Development Tour 2017, and can say with full confidence that it will be an eye-opening and educational first step to developing as a young citizen.

Dushanka Govender - Macleans College

Dushanka has always had a peculiar interest in international relations and diplomacy since she was a child, with some of her earliest memories being of seeing election boards and memorizing all the candidates and parties. Now, as a Year 13 student at Macleans College, she has found herself to be just as interested in politics, but also has a greater interest in making a difference. The Global Development Tour is an opportunity for Dushanka to learn more about the world around her and how it works, as well as what can be done to help those who need it most. Unsurprisingly, her favourite subjects are History and Economics, where she learns about diverse cultures, customs and the inner workings of governments and organisations. Dushanka looks forward to learning more about herself, and her passions on the Tour.

Julia Gunn - Christchurch Girls' High School

Julia is thrilled to be a part of the UN Youth Global Development Tour delegation for 2017. As a student at Christchurch Girls' High School, Julia became involved with UN Youth through her school's Model United Nations Club. After attending her first Canterbury Model UN event in 2014, she knew there was no turning back as her enthusiasm for world politics and debate flourished.

Julia believes in global citizenship and the need for sustainable development goals. This tour is an opportunity for her to increase her understanding so she can be part of our generation's call to effect change to address issues such as the environment, poverty, and terrorism.

Outside of UN Youth, she is a Head Prefect, keen tap dancer and proud member of her school's theatresports club.

Matthew Handford - Hamilton Boys' High School

Matthew is a Year 13 student and current Head Prefect at Hamilton Boys' High School. Matthew is an accomplished scholar, oarsman, and speaker who firmly believes in the old fashioned values of teamwork, dedication, and integrity. He has been involved with UN Youth for three years and firmly believes it has been instrumental in broadening his perspectives and opinions, especially in regards to those whose voices are rarely heard. Matthew seeks to use his skills and experience to become an advocate for meaningful social progress. In particular, he believes in the importance of stable government, a strong independent judiciary, and an active and engaged public. Matthew sees it as a huge honour to be selected for Global Development Tour 2017. He is looking forward to travelling and working alongside a group of extraordinary young people and learning firsthand what it takes to lead the world into a sustainable future.

Charlotte Hollywood - Queen Margaret College

Charlotte is a Year 13 student from Wellington. She currently studies the International Baccalaureate, and is planning on pursuing engineering next year. She has been a Brownie Leader for four years and this year is a school prefect, Girl Up Club President, and a UN Youth High School Ambassador. Charlotte began participating in UN Youth events at the end of 2014 and it was the gateway for her into the fascinating workings of international affairs.

From the Global Development Tour, she hopes to have the opportunity to critically look at and challenge the key issues addressed by the Sustainable Development Goals, in addition to what steps we need to take and are taking towards a solution. She is especially excited to learn about the importance of technology in achieving the Goals. The modernisation of our world has limitless possibilities for improving people's lives, and it is this thought that drives Charlotte's passion for engineering. She believes this tour will also be incredible for herself and all the delegates to meet many new people, both diplomats and delegates alike, and establish independence as young adults stepping out into the world.

Ishan Kokulan - Pinehurst College

Growing up on Auckland's North Shore has given Ishan the ability to understand the true meaning of multiculturalism and diversity, giving him ample opportunity to research and discover the world around him. Knowing the vast amounts of disparity in this world, Ishan has always had an interest in the Millennium Development Goals and the Sustainable Development Goals - Ishan considers this tour in the perfect opportunity to extend his learning.

The global development tour will not only allow him to discover more of the world but also equip him with knowledge regarding the continuing global development. He is excited to meet with professionals and experts who are at the forefront of their field, as well as interacting with other passionate individuals who aim to better the society they live in. Ishan believes the Tour is an incredible opportunity that will turn 22 keen, talented, youthful individuals into global citizens who aware of the world they live in.

Cecilia Lao - Westlake Girls High School

Cecilia is a 17 year old student from Auckland with a passion for global issues. In particular, she is fascinated by how languages (including programming languages) shape our world and plans to pursue French and Japanese alongside Computer Science at university.

"The journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step."

For Cecilia, the Global Development Tour is not only a step towards discovering her place in the world, but also the start of a collaborative journey towards a brighter future with her peers. Today, we are more interconnected than ever. She trusts that the Tour will shed light on this interconnected quality, illustrating how different industries - whether they be financial, political or technological - can cooperate to achieve common humanitarian goals.

If anything, Cecilia believes UN Youth has shown her that millennials are passionate, engaged and full of potential. She sees the Global Development Tour is an investment in youth in the future. It is an opportunity for the delegation to return to their communities empowered with knowledge. With this, she believes she and others can help fan their peers' sparks of potential into flames.

Teresa Lee - ACG Senior College

Teresa is ACG Senior College's Head Leader. Half of the time she can be found following Jacinda Ardern around as her Youth MP; organising an annual UNICEF Charity Ball for 400 high-schoolers, and making politically incorrect jokes while dissecting income inequality at speech competitions. The other half of her time is spent swimming (or wheezing through) 60 laps of a pool, reminiscing about her time performing in 'Henry V' at Auckland's Pop Up Globe and talking to dogs she befriends.

However, in January 2017, 100% of Teresa's time will be spent being one of the fortunate delegates going on the Global Development Tour. She is eager to approach the trip with open-mindedness to reach her three intentions: find out international perspectives on how to create meaningful change in the community; gain leadership expertise by collaborating with empowered students; and have an unforgettable amount of fun!

Hannah Long - Lincoln High School

For much of Hannah's high school life, she has been immersed in and fascinated by the idea of global relations and current affairs. Thanks to a wonderful teacher who recognised her passion, Hannah has been involved with UN Youth since Year 10. Having worked with the organisation for some time now, she has had the pleasure of attending all levels of events. Through her participation, Hannah says she has met so many wonderful people; had so many life changing experiences; and had the chance to find her passion that she knows has helped her ultimately secure her place in the world for years to come.

Hannah is so excited to explore Europe and to experience the world as it begins to work towards meeting the Sustainable Development Goals, set by the United Nations in 2015. She is passionate about creating the very best for our world and hopes that this trip will give her the chance to become an active citizen in our fantastic world.

Peter McKenzie - Scots College

Peter has a passion for youth political engagement in New Zealand. This year, he is the Youth MP for Annette King, for whom he has represented and helped advise. Peter is a firm believer in the value of education. Given this, he has co-founded Active Citizenship Aotearoa, a charity focusing on providing high quality civics education.

This year, Peter was honoured to be selected as the Head Prefect of Scots College and the Captain of the New Zealand Schools Debating Team. To be selected for the Global Development Tour is another significant achievement, and one he looks forward to immensely. In particular, he believes the Tour will allow him to find ideas from overseas governments and other passionate youth that he can then bring back to New Zealand and implement here to improve civic education and youth engagement.

Sam Porta - Hutt International Boys' School

"Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful, committed citizens can change the world; indeed, it's the only thing that ever has." – Margaret Mead.

This is Sam's 'why'. Changing the world to make it a better place than when we first started living upon it. Sam could tell you 'who' and 'what' he stands for. Though at the end of the day, he believes 'why' is much more important. To change the world we need to find and build that small group of thoughtful committed citizens but we also need to understand what needs fixing. To Sam, this tour is a chance to travel with such a group. It is a chance to meet people with experience and ideas about the issues that need addressing. It is a chance to experience new cultures and it is a chance to connect with the individuals, who with time, can help make the world a better place for generations to come. He is looking forward to travelling and working alongside a group of extraordinary young people and learning firsthand what it takes to lead the world into a sustainable future.

Ayush Sharma - Rutherford College

Ayush was born and raised in West Auckland, and is proud to call this beautiful little country home. Over the years, Ayush has learnt the importance of taking all opportunities that come at him, and not leaving them to someone else whom he thinks is 'better' than him. Through doing this, and getting involved with activities such as debating, slam poetry, various leadership positions, and of course the multitude of UN Youth events, Ayush says he has really seen a positive change within himself, particularly in terms of his openness and overall confidence.

He firmly believes that the Global Development Tour 2017 is going to provide him with a crucial stepping-stone, which will not only further increase his all-round confidence, but allow him to see and explore more of the world in which he inhabits, and also catalyse his journey to becoming an active global citizen that promotes and creates active, positive change. Ayush really wants to break out of his personal microcosm and get an enhanced sense of who he is as a person, and what it is that he can actually contribute to a world that has already given him so much.

Young Wu - King's College

Young is a Year 13 school prefect at King's College. He is currently looking at studying foreign relations and international law at university. In his spare time, Young enjoys following current affairs, playing chess and discovering new music. He is grateful for the opportunities UN Youth NZ has given him, as they have allowed him to find what he is passionate about: global affairs, as well as developed his confidence and articulation.

Young hopes that through participating in the Global Development Tour, he will gain a greater insight into how countries create social change in real-time, and how nations avoid political disasters in controversial debates. He also wishes to share this unique experience with his amazing fellow delegates so that they can take out as much as possible from this rare and unique opportunity.
